P.O. Box 10020
Juneau, Alaska 99811 - 0020

Dear Director Rehfeld,

Please find attached our November 21, 2007 funding request to the Honorable Governor Sara Palin. We have been encouraged to resubmit our second funding request to you at this time.

As stated in our November letter, the 2.5 million dollar request was contingent upon receipt of federal funding. The amount of our federal earmark was originally $916,000. The adjusted amount is now $641,000 and is, at present, being challenged. We have every indication that we will receive this funding, and as such, we are reducing our state funding request accordingly, to 1.9 million dollars.

Chris Rainwater, AACD President, and other members of AACD would like to meet with Governor Palin and Commissioner Tom Irwin to discuss in detail the funding request and the proposals in our November 21st letter. This meeting is very important to us and we can be available to meet with Governor Palin and her staff in Anchorage, Wasilla, Juneau or any place she designates, from February 18th thru March 26th. Please contact our Executive Director, Eric Wade at 357-4563 Ext 110 in our Wasilla Office, or myself at bvehrs@gci.net, 907-892-8258/907-232-6887 at your earliest convenience to set up a date if at all possible. Thank you very much for your consideration.

Subject: Press

It's been suggested by media that I have regular press availabilities - not so much formal press confs, but more casual availability. I'm game for that. I'd think gasline and budget will be brightest on radar screens next week, so let's plan on inviting those two topics for discussion - meaning I'd like AGIA and budget folks to join me in the discussions.

Sharon and Beth can set up - ideally early in week when AGIA team arrives in Juneau.

Let's anticipate other topics and have appropriate personnel available to help cover issues that the press wants to share with Alaskans during these press functions. Thank you!

My two cents...the email looks like it was written with the possibility of disclosure in mind. It's very clean, communicates the message well that fits with who you are, but is also good for public consumption. That doesn't mean you did it, or even that he intended it that way--just that he took precautions knowing disclosure was possible. How's that for believing the best of someone?

Thanks Marty. It's been amazing how folks misinterpret our AGIA stedfastness. I'm convinced that some of these entities that want Alaskans to believe that we won't allow the public to hear their proposals will put the nail in their own coffin once Alaskans see and hear their proposals. I don't want Alaskans to think we fear their public discussion of competing ideas - and some are spinning this horribly. I know you know this - and I appreciate you letting the public know we're not deaf to ideas other than TC's - in fact other ideas are encouraged to be debated, but AGIA dictates TC's plan be considered bc of its conformity.

Governor Palin,

I found it interesting that the Senate (and Legislature) could not accomodate your request for changing the time of the State of the State address since this was to ensure you could make the plane for Track's graduation from boot camp. This request seemed reasonable, timely, and offered a sublte opportunity for our representatives to make a statement on duty, country, the war, and family.

Instead, certain folks made it seem like they had to make a stand for whatever reason. Sorry about that.

Thanks for your work and representation.

MESSAGE:

Hey, Govorner Sarah Palin. This is Daniel Brown. I was the MidValley High School student that you served food with at the 16th Annual Christmas Friendship Dinner. I wanted you to know, that was a great experience for me. It is such a good feeling doing things for others. I am glad you were able to take time out of your busy schedule to help with something so important to the Mat-Su Valley. That is why I would like to invite you and your family to participate in MidValley High School's 5th Annual Trail of Remembrance on Saturday, May 10th. The Trail of Remembrance is a 5k walk, run, or bike. Each participant is able to honor a Veteran of their choice. All honoree names are put on individual signs that are displayed marking the trail each year. The trail starts at Big Lake Napa and ends in our school parking lot in the Meadow Lakes City Center. The money raised is split between our school and local veterans. This money helps our school provide students with opportunities to go to differ ent conferences, as well as supplement our prom and graduation. Your support would be greatly appreciated by all MidValley students, as well as the local veterans. If you have time to reply, please use this staff e-mail: valerie.goodwin@matsuk12.us, or the school contact information. I want to thank you again, for your time, and all your support here in the valley.

Sincerely,

<http://www.adn.com/static/includes/alaskapolitics/012307-hickel-gottstein.pdf> > Here's a letter Wally Hickel and David Gottstein sent Gov. Sarah Palin urging reconsideration of her finding that TransCanada has the only pipeline proposal to qualify under the Alaska Gasline Inducement Act.

"The decision of your administration will likely increase frustration with AGIA and result in rejection by the legislature," the letter says.

The Alaska Gasline Port Authority, which proposes a gas pipeline to Valdez, has asked Palin to reconsider rejecting its plan. Palin spokeswoman Sharon Leighow told me that the administration believes there is no provision in AGIA for reconsideration. Palin's gas team has passed it onto the department of law for a formal ruling on that.

Have you decided on who you will be supporting for President? Might I suggest that you support Governor Romney. Ethics, both personal and public, are a critical talent to have in place as a politician. Gov. Romney has integrity as a foundation that he has built his life upon. I know how important this is to you and would therefore recommend that you support a candidate who feels the same.

Inquiring minds want to know........

What made Global Warming in Alaska, move faster than we thought?

Must be because our Governor's so HOT.

Can't wait to read the Feb. issue of Ak. Magazine. I'll have to go to the library, I just can't bring myself to pay for an issue. Are the T-shirts being sold around "The Valley" authorized by the Governor?

Effective communication must be cultivated

By Catherine Mormile

Spectrum, January 22, 2008

As a healthcare provider, I feel compelled to comment after last week's incident of communication conflict between Governor Palin, state Rep. John Harris and state Sen. Lyda Green over scheduling of the State of the State address this past week.

This seemingly small incident, but unresolved communication conflict, appears to have culminated in belittling of Senator Green by two Anchorage radio announcers in the presence of Governor Palin, to which she did not stop or disagree with the insults, but just laughed. Such errors in communication have been known to cause unnecessary interpersonal conflicts.

Communication error and misunderstandings between individuals account for nearly 70 percent of the conflicts, loss of productivity, job dissatisfaction and loss of personal well-being in the workplace. The U.S. Department of Health and Human Services has determined that workplace conflict with loss of personal sense of well-being contributes to incidences of depression, obesity and low fitness levels. Nearly 10 million U.S. workers complain each year of work-related head and neck pains. One of the main causes cited for such pains are the consequences of improper communication.

Over the last 50 years, the terms "health" and "healthcare" have undergone changes in definition and application. Health, once defined as absence of disease, is now defined as a physical, mental and social process of an individual to enjoy quality of life and satisfaction. Healthcare systems now favor an active rather than passive process by which patients are encouraged to become more aware of factors that relate to healthy living and to participate in demonstrating choices and behaviors that promote a more successful existence.

In December 2007, the governor's Alaskan Health Care Strategies Planning Council identified a key healthcare goal of promoting personal health responsibility. Governor Palin reiterated the importance of personal health responsibility in her recent State of the State address. Practicing effective interpersonal communication skills are essential behaviors that directly promote health and well-being. Ineffective communication skills, on the other hand, are detriments to health.

Ineffective communication may take the form of mechanical error, in that the speaker may not wait to obtain feedback the listener actually heard or understood the message or request. Or, the listener may be so intent on getting a message heard he or she is not perceiving what is being said to them. In both cases there is an expectancy of being heard by the other and little or no effort put into making sure the message was understood. This is the old I-assumed-you-heard-me communication error. In this case, misunderstandings could be avoided by making sure the message is clear and understandable, that the listener is attentive and receptive, and that adequate feedback is obtained.

Other barriers to effective communication take the form of attitude bias. It appears human nature for people to form prejudgments and expectancies of how others should or will behave, and to be upset when things do not turn out as expected. Once expectancies are formed in a person's mind, the prejudgments become the filter through which the individual chooses to view communication exchanges. Therefore, the communication process becomes erroneous because the emotional aspects of prejudgment prevented the listener from actually hearing, perceiving and weighing the merits of the objective evidence presented by the speaker.

I am not proposing a person totally ignore previous judgments and perceptions; rather, to separate the emotional from the actual message, weigh the two for their merits, ask questions and seek feedback for clarifications, then make a decision based on evidence, not emotion.

Assuring proper mechanics of communication by actively stopping to reflect upon a preexisting emotional bias while separating away the objective message is an essential skill required in healthy interpersonal exchanges, promotion of healthy behaviors and leadership.

The last essence of proper communication is contained within the intent and delivery of the speaker. My mentor and friend, the late Louise Kellogg of the Spring Creek Farm in Palmer, taught me three principles she used for effective communication: 1. Seek to understand before demanding to be understood; 2. Honor those who are not present; 3. Determine whether the communication effort will promote goodwill and positive outcomes for all involved. These are good principles to live by indeed.

Improvements of cooperation and communication skills have been identified as essential issues to work on this year by legislators, the governor and residents. Like any behavior, it must be patiently nurtured and practiced by all as old habits are replaced. This will be a slow process, but an effective one. As Mark Twain wrote in 1896, "Habits are not to be thrown out the upstairs window, but coaxed down the stairs one step at a time."

Governor has chosen to endorse another candidate, but I hope that you will consider Mike Huckabee! The project would realign track through North Pole and part of Fairbanks to eliminate about 18 railroad crossings. The railroad supports the project. It is Phase I of a much larger $300 million dollar realignment, but can stand alone as a needed improvement from the larger project.

Separately Leo, Tom, Bruce, Emil and myself have now spoken with Steven Haagenson regarding his interest to head up the State's Energy Plan overseeing the AEA. His qualifications as Leo put it, would be difficult to beat. Steven is pumped at the prospect of ushering in your energy plan for Alaska.

While there are a few questions outstanding, all on the interview panel agree that Steven is the right person for the job. Wanted you to know that (my understanding is that) Emil or Leo are bringing up Steven Haagenson's name before the AIDEA board tomorrow to consider as director for AEA and the process is moving forward.
